PART I: GENERAL INFORMATION

• DESCRIPTION OF TOWN

- SHORT HISTORY AND LOCATION

About 150 metres above sea level, Nicosia is situated at the centre of the Mesaoria plain, and is only an hour away from the nearest coast. Known in antiquity as Ledra, Nicosia was already a kingdom in the 7th century and became the seat of the government in the 10th century.

The ancient city is surrounded by fortifications built by the Venetians in the XVIth century in order to protect the town from invaders. The historical centre, nowadays known as “Laiki geitonia” has been renovated and is pleasant to walk about for both visitors and local people.

The modern city, which extends itself around the historical centre, abounds in ancient monuments and architectural vestiges of the successive conquerors of the island (Lusignans, Venetians, Genoese, Ottomans, English).

The old city is divided by the infamous “green line” which separates the northern part of the country illegally occupied by Turkey since 1974 from the rest of the Republic.

- MAIN LOCAL/CULTURAL EVENTS

On its completion the University Campus will be able to accommodate a total of 8000 students. Some teaching areas have already been completed and student Residences have been handed over for use since September 2003.

The University is a member of the Community of Mediterranean Universities (CMU), the Network of Universities from the Capitals of Europe (UNICA), the Association of Commonwealth Universities (ACU) and the Association of European Universities (EUA). The University Library (a fully electronic library since 2001) contains print, non-print, audiovisual and digital material as well as facilities for reproduction into Braille for blind users. It has more than 220.000 books and 2900 scholarly journals -with an annual increase of about 12.000 new titles- and several important collections such as those of the Archaeological Unit and Turkish Studies.
